“Democratization of wealth will increase demand for liquidity”

Looking to the Horizon - The Lasting Effects of Wealth Innovation

Shoqat Bunglawala
Head of Multi-Asset Solutions EMEA and Asia, Goldman Sachs Asset Management

“We still refer to these vehicles as open-ended rather than semi-liquid for an important reason, which is it's still intended to be a long-term investment vehicle. Fundamentally, you're investing in long-term deals, not to invest in and out of and treat as public market exposure.”

What the Evergreen Era means for the Mutualisation of Private Markets

Edouard Boscher
Head of Private Equity at Carmignac

“To provide liquidity means that you need to be extremely disciplined. And the way you can achieve the liquidity mechanism is by investing in short duration investments. Our goal was to get access to the secondary market to allow a very mature portfolio.”

SFO Summit: The Realities of Putting Family Capital to Work in Private Markets

Maxime Carmignac
Carmignac

“When you approach private markets as a family office, you don't have the same positioning or bargaining power as large institutional investors — and that shapes how you access opportunities.”

What the evergreen era means for the mutualization of Private Markets

Benjamin Brochet
Deputy CEO of Crystal

“What will be key for us is to really watch these portfolios. Our role is to advise our clients to get in to products but also to get out when it is time to take liquidity”

Implications of a 50/30/20 Future

Nancy Curtin
Global CIO, Alti Tiedemann Global

“Everything we do is going to be customised to individual circumstances. There isn't a formula, there isn't a Yale model. We think about a client's risk and return profile, asset class preferences, comfort level with illiquidity, need for income”

Selecting the right wealth playbook

Olivier Dauman
Indosuez Wealth Management

"Closed-ended funds were highly tailored. With evergreen structures, private markets risk becoming more of a commodity — compared quarter by quarter."

Meet the pioneers: How private markets can truly democratize

Victor (Ji Woong) Jung
Hamilton Lane

"The shift is similar to what streaming did for music and e-commerce did for retail"

What to expect from the next era of evergreens

Mathieu Forcioli
HSBC

"Valuation policy has never been so important — monthly liquidity comes with a real operational cost."

Integrating Private Markets into discretionary portfolios

Wadih Manneh
Head of Private Markets, Arab Bank (Switzerland)

"We're moving in the right direction. We're seeing more and more platforms specialised in evergreens that facilitate access. But what's missing in my opinion is the quality of GP team members that service these products"

What will define the investment outlook for 2026?

David Hirschmann
Co-CEO of Permira Credit

"It's about sector selection and asset selection, portfolio monitoring, and also having some restructuring and turnaround capacity"

AltGoMainstream Live: An architect's view on the origins, evolution and outlook for evergreens

Christopher Mauss
Partners Group

"Evergreen solutions require a long-term mindset — at least five to seven years."

Does Size Matter?

Fabio Osta

Head of Alternatives Specialists EMEA, BlackRock

"Infrastructure and credit are likely to be the asset classes that will grow the most in private markets."

How the next generation will invest differently from the last

Alisa Wood

Co-CEO, KKR London

Institutional investors figured out decades ago "that having private markets as part of their toolkit in driving returns was really important. When you think about this wealth transfer, why should wealth investors have any fewer ways to win in driving those returns?"

Integrating Private Markets into discretionary portfolios

David Storm

CIO, Wealth Management Europe at RBC Capital Markets

"What we're looking for is the ability to consistently deploy consistently at scale. Evergreens have been a bit of an unlock for that."

Implications of a 50/30/20 Future

Greta Teot

Head of Private Markets, Mediobanca

"We have to go from tactical exposure to core private markets exposure in our portfolios"

With global mega forces like AI and the energy transition re-shaping economies, private markets are increasingly becoming a cornerstone of portfolios for both institutional and wealth investors.

We were thrilled to engage with clients and partners on the opportunity for private capital to address the needs of Europe at IPEM.

Thank you to everyone who took the time to connect with us in Cannes.

Back from IPEM Wealth 2026 in Cannes – a few personal takeaways.

This edition clearly confirmed that evergreen structures are increasingly central to European private wealth markets. A trend we've been backing for years, today's momentum validates our long-standing conviction.

What about the broader market?

The bar is higher than ever.

- ◆ LPs are extremely selective – differentiation and proven value creation are non-negotiable.
- ◆ Secondaries are in strong demand – liquidity and portfolio optimization are front and center.
- ◆ AI must deliver measurable impact – Tangible EBITDA improvement and valuation uplift matter; theoretical potential narratives don't.

In this environment, I'm convinced that discipline and operational depth make the difference.

At Seven2, we rely on:

- 50+ years of a proven operating system focused on operational excellence
- Deep B2B tech & services expertise
- AI embedded as an ROI-driven performance lever — not a buzzword
- A pan-European platform accelerating mid-sized companies into category champions
- A long-standing pioneering position in retail access to private equity, with ambitions to expand further across Europe

In a more demanding market, measurable transformation is what separates signal from noise.

It was a privilege to deliver the opening keynote at #IPEMWealth this week, marking its 10th anniversary in Cannes.

The theme of the conference, riding the crest of the wave, captures the strong momentum in private markets – driven by easier access, new distribution channels, and rapidly enhanced technology and data.

As the largest investor into the region with over €1.8 trillion invested on behalf of our clients*, we see an enormous opportunity for private capital to step in to address their needs, as well as the needs of Europe.

A decade on from the first IPEM the progress in private markets has been remarkable – but we know the next 10 years will be even more so!

Across Europe, I've noticed a clear shift in how wealth investors are approaching private equity.

I recently spent time with clients and business partners across the UK, Switzerland, and Monaco, where conversations centered on how private equity fits within wealth portfolios in today's environment. What stood out was the consistency of these discussions, which are increasingly focused on portfolio construction, implementation, and long-term outcomes.

I also joined the IPEM Wealth conference in Cannes, participating in a private equity panel alongside Theo Delia-Russell (Mediobanca) and Jean-Damien Marie (Barclays). A few themes consistently resonated:

✓ Private equity's role in wealth portfolios continues to evolve. Investors are focused on diversification and differentiated outcomes relative to public markets, with an emphasis on how these allocations perform across cycles.

✓ Evergreen and closed-ended structures are complementary. Used together, they can help investors achieve targeted exposure aligned to specific objectives and liquidity preferences.

✓ Manager selection is critical. Operating an evergreen strategy requires a distinct skill set compared to traditional closed-ended funds, making experience, discipline, and infrastructure essential.

Thank you to Swetha Gopinath at Bloomberg for moderating the discussion, and to the many clients we connected with throughout the conference. I look forward to continuing these conversations across the region... and beyond!

That's a wrap for IPEM Cannes 2026! 🎉
Un rendez-vous clé pour tout notre écosystème wealth et une nouvelle édition à laquelle j'étais heureux de prendre part.

Quand j'ai commencé dans ce métier, Noelle WYDAUW m'a dit : « Investir en private equity, c'est un mariage qui dure au moins dix ans. ». Une image très parlante et surtout toujours valable aujourd'hui pour comprendre cette classe d'actifs.

📌 Le private equity impose le temps long. C'est d'ailleurs souvent ce qui surprend les épargnants au départ : immobiliser son capital plusieurs années. Mais c'est aussi ce qui permet aux entreprises de se transformer, de grandir, et in fine de délivrer des niveaux de performance souvent supérieurs aux marchés cotés pour les épargnants.

La preuve avec les performances d'EPVE 3 qui en attestent : 7,4 % de rendement annualisé sur les 5 dernières années.
Pour permettre de répliquer ce succès à l'échelle européenne, nous avons récemment annoncé le lancement d'EPIC et d'EPSO, 2 véhicules evergreen de notre gamme PRIME.

Enfin, difficile de parler de cette édition de l'IPEM Cannes sans rappeler que nous avons figuré parmi les asset managers les plus récompensés :

- 🏆 Best Multi-Asset Evergreen Fund 2025 (Bronze)
- 🏆 Best Wealth Partnership (Silver)
- 🏆 Best Local Market Fund Manager (Silver)

Des distinctions qui disent beaucoup du sérieux et de l'expertise de notre dream team wealth.
Fier du travail accompli collectivement.

Private Equity: a return to optimism and an industry rapidly adapting to the rise of private investors

Since 2018, IPEM has organized this survey in partnership with AlixPartners, with the support of 14 national private equity associations. It captures the sentiment of European GPs for the year ahead, highlighting key risks, opportunities, and trends in investment and fundraising.

Conducted from November 27 to December 23, 2025, with the participation of 143 European management companies, the eighth edition of the annual pan-European private equity survey highlights a clear resurgence of optimism for 2026. In an environment still marked by geopolitical and economic uncertainty, the sector anticipates a recovery in activity, both in terms of fundraising and investments and exits, while continuing its transformation to adapt to the rise of individual investors.
